Sparta, NJ (October 16, 2014) – Custom Systems Corporation announced today that it has made a donation of $3,000 to Circle of Seasons Charter School (COS), Fogelsville, Pennsylvania. This donation solidifies Custom Systems’ commitment to accessible, affordable technology to benefit elementary and middle school education.

“We are a new school, located in a rural setting with inadequate internet options that ultimately limited our staff and administration,” said Phil Arnold, Founder/COS Administrator. “As a result of Custom Systems’ generous donation, COS was able to gain greatly improved internet access. This allows our staff to explore a wealth of information available to us, help educate parents, research curriculum and improve parent/teacher communication.”

“Having worked with Phil in the past, it is an honor for Custom Systems to be a part of this unique charter school experience,” David Bubb, Sales Director, Custom Systems. “All private and charter schools should have the benefit of the today’s every-increasing technology. This has become a large part of our commitment to charter and private schools in New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania.”

Located in the Northwestern Lehigh school district in Fogelsville, PA, Circle of Seasons is a public, Waldorf-Methods charter school that offers a learning environment that is inspirational and disciplined, one that infuses learning with enthusiasm, creativity and significance. It is the only public school of its kind in the eastern US. For more information, visit their website at www.circleofseasons.org
